Bangladesh	Tariq Bin Azam; Ahsanur Rahman	Advancing Universal Health Coverage (AUHC) in Bangladesh	This Broad Agency Announcement (BAA) seeks Expressions of Interest on game changing solutions to advance Universal Health Coverage in Bangladesh. The United States Agency for International Development Bangladesh's Office of Population, Health, Nutrition and Education (USAID/Bangladesh/OPHNE) invites organizations and companies to partner with USAID/Bangladesh, as described below, to significantly expand access to safe, affordable and quality health services in Bangladesh, while increasing financial protection, particularly of the poor, in support of the Government of Bangladesh's National Health Care Financing Strategy (2012-2032), under which Universal Health Coverage is a key priority. This is the same opportunity that was listed in the USAID Business Forecast (July 2016) — NGO Health Service Delivery Activity (NHSDP) Next Iteration, to provide direct service provision under the new health sector program and support the Government of Bangladesh's goal to obtain Universal Health Coverage by 2035. This new activity will improve household dietary diversity and reduce childhood stunting. It will layer its interventions within a broad array of Feed the Future and Food for Peace agriculture activities, building on and scaling up previously successful nutrition pilot activities. Egypt	Nevine Hindy	STEM Teacher Preparation Program	In September 2011, the Egyptian Ministry of Education (MOE) introduced advanced Science, Technology, Engineering, and Mathematics (STEM) education, as part of its formal secondary education system, targeting gifted students who have the desire and aptitude to pursue specialized and advanced levels of science and mathematics to progress on to higher education. To-date, the MOE established nine STEM schools and is planning to establish eighteen more schools by school year 2018/2019. The planned expansion of STEM education in Egypt has already created demand for highly qualified and skilled STEM teachers who have a solid command of English language and demonstrated understanding of STEM concepts. To satisfy the needs of STEM education, USAID/Egypt is planning to fund the implementation of a STEM Teacher Preparation program, which aims at: 1. Providing pre-service teacher candidates with deep content knowledge and the ability to continually refine their STEM pedagogical skills; and 2. Supporting teachers already within the Ministry of Education's system as they transition from teaching through traditional lecture to project-based and inquiry-based pedagogy. The program will support the expansion and sustainability of STEM education by preparing candidate teachers to deliver STEM curricula, adopt evolving STEM teaching methodologies, and engage in research and innovation, in addition to strengthening STEM in-service professional development programs. Pre-service and in-service teacher education institutions will institutionalize the development and dissemination of new STEM knowledge. USAID/Egypt recognizes that STEM teacher education requires systemic reform that will involve higher education institutions, the Ministries of Education and Higher Education, and STEM schools. Further, excellence in STEM learning involves linking professors, teachers, and students to the global knowledge economy in order to remain relevant in the ever-evolving area of science, technology, engineering and mathematics. This invitation is equally extended to potential public sector partners (e.g., the Government of India, public companies, as well as other bilateral and multilateral donors). The APS is also USAID/India's invitation to prospective Implementing Partners (e.g., NGOs, private sector concerns, and others) who can engage and work with Resource Partners. USAID/India encourages Indian implementing organizations (for-profit and not-for-profit non-governmental organizations) and non-traditional Indian development partners, to reach out to Resource Partners, Indian or otherwise, and explore ways in which collaboration with USAID/India might help advance shared development goals. Liberia	Ruth D. Caesar-Hne	Poverty Reduction Options for the Vulnerable Evaluation (PROVE)	This impact evaluation will monitor a sample of households that are receiving integrated combinations of poverty-reducing USAID social protection interventions from the many activities in the Liberia portfolio in food security, agricultural livelihoods, credit, health and education in the Food for Peace (FFP) target districts of 3 counties (Bong, Grand Bassa and River Cess) and compare the impact of these various in-kind service packages with a comparative sample of households that are only receiving cash transfers and back yard garden assistance (which will be the Government of Liberia Social Protection package). The cash transfer household sample will be drawn from River Gee or Grand Kru (the two counties where vulnerable households will receive cash transfers from the government of Liberia for the first time). Results of the impact evaluation are expected to inform USAID in Liberia and worldwide on the most effective ways to reduce poverty for different types of vulnerable households (e.g. those with and without labor constraints, land access, etc.). Households in the sample will be drawn from those enrolled by the GOL in the new biometrically verified national Social Registry, which will provide GIS coordinates and a unique identification number for each household. Peru	Jose Antonio Zarzar	SERVIR Amazonia	SERVIR is a joint initiative of USAID and NASA to help developing countries improve environmental management and resilience to climate change by strengthening the capacity of governments and other key stakeholders to integrate Earth observation information and geospatial technologies into development decision-making. SERVIR Amazonia will be integrated into both the global SERVIR program and the Amazon-targeted USAID Amazon Regional Environment Program. The overall goal of the Amazon Regional Environment Program is to reduce the negative impacts on Amazon forest and water resources by large-scale infrastructure projects, extractive activities, and the effects of climate change. In this context, the goal of SERVIR Amazonia is to reduce these and other negative impacts through increased application of geospatial analysis for improved planning and decision-making. SERVIR Amazonia will have a thematic focus around hydro-meteorological management decision support, with specific themes of drought and fire risk, water resources and hydro-climatic events, ecosystems management, and weather and climate. Zambia	Patricia Siaso	Scaling Up Nutrition -Technical Assistance	USAID intend to award a Scaling Up Nutrition -high impact technical assistance in 30 districts focusing on reducing stunting by 15%.The activity will integrate agriculture, nutrition, and water and sanitation activity. The expected geographic focus will be determined in due course. Addressing stunting requires children and pregnant and lactating women are consuming adequate quantity, quality and diversity of food and that adequate health conditions exist for them to biologically utilize what they eat. This requires a complexity of interventions that increase access and availability of safe, diverse, nutritious food (usually relying on home production), adoption of better child feeding and women's diets, water and hygiene practices to improve food safety and utilization, and access to clean water and a healthier, cleaner environment. This requires a multi-sectoral approach that increases incomes; improves agricultural productivity and private sector led value chain development in nutrient-dense, protein-rich foods; improves access to and availability and utilization of nutritious food, clean water, and sanitation; improves health-seeking behaviors for both the pregnant mother, as well as her child; and promotes essential nutrition and hygiene behaviors, including hand-washing, exclusive breastfeeding, appropriate complementary feeding, child spacing, and hygienic play spaces. The selected agricultural interventions will build on evidence from similar interventions such as Feed the Future programs and would likely choose from groundnuts, soy, cowpea, pigeon pea, orange maize, orange flesh sweet potato, African Indigenous Vegetables, and poultry, to ensure a source of protein. The water and sanitation activities should promote access to and use of latrines at household level, and safe water points, CLTS and Essential Hygiene Actions and most critically, strengthen governance and private sector engagement to ensure long-term sustainability. The project will work closely with the learning and evaluation program and will be expected to incorporate findings in the TA to the districts. Zimbabwe	Theresa Peta	Zimbabwe's enhancing Resilience of OVC getting to Zero	Getting to ZERO will be a five-year program to reduce HIV impact, as well as increase uptake of and retention in high impact HIV services among orphans and vulnerable children and adolescents in targeted communities in Zimbabwe. The strategic objective of Getting to ZERO will be improved child wellbeing amongst HIV affected children in Zimbabwe. The program will seek to mitigate the impact of HIV on orphans and vulnerable children through advancing local ownership of a comprehensive, integrated, community-based AIDS response. The program will support families and communities to increase the resilience of vulnerable children and other family members and to reduce susceptibility to HIV infection. The program will contribute to achievement of PEPFAR and UNAIDS 90-90-90 goals by strengthening community platforms that engage with and support the devolution and scale up of clinical services at the local level.
