USAID Inaugurates Gbegbeyesie “A & B” Cluster of Schools

Accra, GHANA – USAID Deputy Assistant Administrator for the Bureau for Africa Oren Whyche-Shaw inaugurated Gbegbeyesie “A & B” Cluster of Schools, a USAID-supported three-story, 18-unit cluster of three public primary schools in Dansoman, Accra on December 8, 2015. Also present at the inauguration were officials from the Ministry of Education, Members of Parliament, and the Honorable Alfred Oko Vanderpuije, Mayor of Accra. The Gbegbeyesie “A & B” Cluster of Schools houses three standard primary schools in one building and includes science and computer laboratories as well as a library.

USAID supports the Accra Metropolitan Assembly to build and furnish new school complexes to increase access to basic education and to help eradicate the “shift system” in which pupils only attend school for part of the day due to lack of space. From 2011-2013, USAID/Ghana provided $2.3 million to the Accra Metropolitan Assembly to build and furnish four school complexes. In June 2014, USAID/Ghana provided $1.5 million to the Accra Metropolitan Assembly for the construction of two additional school complexes. USAID/Ghana is also funding the construction of six new kindergarten blocks for the Accra Metropolitan Assembly. Construction of these kindergarten blocks started this past September.

“By investing in essential education infrastructure, the United States and Ghana are encouraging life-long learning,” said Ms. Whyche-Shaw at the inauguration. “These schools are helping the nation of Ghana to improve economic growth, attract foreign investment, create new jobs, and ensure the prosperity of each and every Ghanaian child.”

The goal of USAID/Ghana’s education program is to ensure that children are given the foundational skills to read with understanding in the early grades of primary school. USAID’s activities in Ghana improve the quality of reading instruction, strengthen the management of educational institutions, improve accountability and transparency between parents, schools and local government, and help communities contribute to student and teacher performance.

About USAID
