national interest. The initial period of a transfer is typically three years or less.

434.3.11 Status of Transferred Employees

Effective Date: 09/16/2002

For the duration of the transfer an employee shall retain retirement benefits, health benefits, and insurance coverage provided that the appropriate contributions are deposited in a timely manner with USAID, Financial Management. In accordance with 5 CFR 352.309c, employee payments are currently deposited if received by the Agency before, during or within three months after the end of the pay period covered. (See 5 CFR 352.309c) Except for health benefits, payments and contributions to those funds are based on the rate of pay the employee would have received if the employee had not transferred. The Agency shall determine this rate. Thus, the Agency must establish when the transferred employee would have received a within-grade or general pay increase. Also, any promotions made during the period of transfer must be taken into account. Health benefits payments depend upon the premium of the plan in which the employee is enrolled and type of enrollment (family or self only). The Agency must ensure that the employee payments are adjusted whenever necessary.

Employee payments are considered to be deposited in a timely manner if received by USAID before, during, or within three months after the end of the pay period during which coverage is provided. Failure to deposit these payments in a timely manner terminates the transferred employee's coverage on the last day of the pay period for which payments were deposited in timely manner, subject to a 31-day extension of life insurance and health benefits coverage as provided by regulations. Terminated coverage may not be renewed until the employee actually reenters on duty in a pay status in USAID.

An employee who transfers retains coverage and all benefits and rights to compensation for work injuries. However, such compensation may not be drawn from both the international organization and the U.S. Government.

434.3.11.1 Annual Leave

Effective Date: 09/16/2002

A transferred employee may elect to retain with USAID all accumulated and current accrued annual leave for which the employee is eligible or the employee may request a lump-sum payment at any time prior to reemployment with USAID.

Upon reemployment, an employee is entitled to have the period of separation covered by the effect reemployment counted as creditable service for determining the rate at which annual leave is accrued. If not previously liquidated by lump-sum payment, the transfer is reinstated upon reemployment. Leave earned in the employ of the international organization is not creditable when exercising reemployment rights.

An asterisk and yellow highlight indicate that the adjacent material is new for this chapter or substantively revised.*

434.3.11.2 Sick Leave

Effective Date: 09/16/2002

Upon reemployment, an employee's sick leave shall be restored to the status at the time of the employee's separation and transfer, in accordance with 5 CFR 630.502. (See 5 CFR 630.502) Sick leave earned while in the employ of the international organization shall not be credited to the employee's account upon reemployment in USAID.

434.3.11.3 Employee Evaluation and Promotion

Effective Date: 09/16/2002

Office of Human Resources, Personnel Operations Division (OHR/POD) shall request that the international organization evaluate the work performance of an employee on transfer in accordance with USAID regulations.

Any USAID promotion made while the employee is on transfer shall be effective the day it would have been effective if the employee were on the USAID rolls.

434.3.11.4 Step Increases

Effective Date: 09/16/2002

The personnel and pay records of a transferred employee shall be updated to reflect step increases as they become due. Appropriate adjustments shall be made in the amounts due from the employee for retirement and life insurance.

434.3.11.5 Reemployment Rights

Effective Date: 09/16/2002

An employee who transfers to an international organization has a right to reemployment in the USAID position held at time of transfer, or to one of like seniority, status, and pay within 30 days of submission of an application for reemployment, if the following conditions are met:

- a. The employee is separated either voluntarily or involuntarily, at the expiration of or within the period of transfer and employment with the international organization.
- b. The employee applies for reemployment to USAID no later than ninety calendar days after separation from the international organization.

Upon reemployment within the statutory limitations, an employee is entitled to have the period necessary to effect reemployment counted as creditable service for all appropriate Federal employment purposes, such as determining the rate at which annual leave is accrued.

A transferred employee is entitled, upon reemployment, to an equalization allowance.

An asterisk and yellow highlight indicate that the adjacent material is new for this chapter or substantively revised.*

An equalization allowance is defined as the difference between the specified pay, allowances, post differential, and other monetary benefits a transferred employee receives from the international organization, and the amount which would have been received if detailed to the international organization from the Federal Government under 5 USC 3343, "Detail; to international organizations". Factors considered in calculating the difference noted above are set forth in 5 CFR 352.310(a)(1) through (4).

At the end of each calendar year and at the end of the term of employment, the employee must furnish a statement of all pay, allowances, and other monetary benefits received from the international organization; changes in family status and the applicable dates; and appropriate supporting evidence prescribed by USAID to substantiate employee's claim for equalization amounts. An Equalization Allowance Information form (Form AID 410-1) [This document is only available on the USAID Intranet] is to be used to submit this information to the Office of the Chief Financial Officer, Payroll Division (M/CFO/P). Copies of this form shall be given to a transferred employee at the beginning of the transfer.
